Project Title: Epipremnum aureum Microsite

1. Project overview
    - This website will give information on the common houseplant “pothos.” It will be a guide on what to expect when you get the plant.

2. Resources
    - Content can be found here: https://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Epipremnum_aureum
    - I would also like to include a personal story about my experience owning this plant.
    - Images will likely be a mix of drawn ones, sourced online, and my own personal photos of my plants.

4. Audience
    - This will be an informational site, but requires reading comprehension/general interest so maybe middle school and above? I think another subaudience could be general plant lovers or first time plant owners.

5. Message
    - I want people to know that plants are living creatures too and can be loved in a similar caliber to animals. Just because we deem them a lower level of “conciousness” does not mean they should be treated with neglect! I want to inform the average houseplant owner.
6. Tone
    - I want it to be more of a narrative style, maybe even making people sympathetic towards the plants. It should also be informational too.
8. Visual Style
    - Big on greens, artistic and inviting. I want the site to sway people to want to get their own pothos. I think illustrated images integrated with regular ones could help in showing the beauty of these plants.
